Changes in Estimates post Q1FY25

FY25E/FY26E: Revenue 1%/1%; EBITDA Margins 1%/1%; PAT 2%/2%

Recommendation Rationale

- Long-term demand still remains resilient: The long-term demand scenario continues to remain strong and the IT sector is likely to regain its momentum in H2FY25 and onwards. However, near-term demand remains uncertain due to which growth mentum remains uncertain.
- Secured deals to support medium-term demand momentum: The management is also confident of gaining medium-term demand momentum, supported by the deals it has won in the previous quarters.
- Margins to remain stable: The management foresees stability in the company's margins going forward.
- Robust deal wins: Deal wins remain in line with expectations at $1.96 Bn, with 24 large deals, including 11 deals involving Generative AI.

Sector Outlook: Cautiously positive

Company Outlook & Guidance: Revenue growth is expected to be in the range of 3%–5% YoY in CC. The management has retained its EBIT margin guidance of 18.0%–19.0%

Current Valuation: 21x FY26E P/E; Earlier Valuation: 20x FY26E P/E

Current TP: 1,730/share (Earlier TP: Rs 1,550/share)

Recommendation: We believe there are some green shoots in the demand environment and expect to witness a pickup in demand. Moreover, supply-side constraints are expected to ease off in the medium term. Hence, we upgrade our recommendation on the stock to BUY.

Financial Performance

In Q1FY25, HCL-Tech Ltd (HCLT) reported revenue of Rs 28,057 Cr, down 2% QoQ which stood in line with expectations. The company's operating profit stood at Rs 4,795 Cr, reporting a de-growth of 4% on a QoQ basis. In line with our expectations, the company's operating margins declined by 52bps to 17%, which was largely led by lower services revenue margins and lower contribution from the P&P business during the quarter. Its net profit for Q1FY25 stood at Rs 4,257 Cr, registering growth of 7% QoQ.

Outlook

We believe HCL Tech is well-placed for encouraging growth from a long-term perspective given its multiple long-term contracts with the world's leading brands. Richer revenue visibility gives us confidence in its business growth moving forward. Moreover, we believe an encouraging demand environment will help eliminate uncertainty over discretionary spend.

Valuation & Recommendation

We recommend a BUY rating on the stock and assign a 21x P/E multiple to its FY26E earnings of Rs 83/share to arrive at a TP of Rs 1,730/share. The TP implies an upside of 11% from the CMP.

Recommendation Rationale & Key Highlights

- Management confident of continuing demand strength in the medium term: The US is reviving with revenue growth momentum as compared to Europe and is seeing higher cost optimization deals (with faster decision-making). Nonetheless, the European market, too, is expected to see strong traction for ER&D and other automation moving forward. As the macro environment stabilizes, the company expects a pick-up in clients' decision-making.

- Telecom and Manufacturing vertical remain resilient: On the vertical front, Telecom & Media and Public Services reported growth of 3.8% QoQ. The manufacturing vertical de-grew by 6.1%, while Technology and services grew by 3.4% QoQ. The BFSI vertical reported a QoQ de-growth of 4.9% due to ramp-down of one large client project. Life Sciences de-grew by 4.5%. The majority of the verticals witnessed tepid growth. On the brighter side, they are likely to report excellent growth moving forward, backed by a strong deal pipeline.

- Steady geographical performance: On the geographical front, North America (66% of revenue) declined by 0.9% QoQ and Europe (29% of revenue) de-grew by 5.5%. RoW (6.4% of revenue) grew 1.2% QoQ (in the CC terms) respectively.

- Robust recovery in ER&D & IT Services declined: IT services (72% of Revenue) showed a de-growth of 1.8% QoQ. ER&D services (16.4% of the revenue) posted a decline of 3.7% QoQ, aided by lacklustre traction for automation. IT software (12.3% of the company's revenue) improved by 0.9% QoQ. The near-term outlook remains similar to the previous quarter but the management is confident about the company's medium to long-term outlook.

- HCL-Tech closed 24 large deal wins: 13 are in services and 8 in software across industry verticals including GenAI. New deal TCV in the quarter stood in line with our expectation at $1.96 Bn.

Key Risks to our Estimates and TP

- The demand environment is uncertain because of the potential threat of recession from the world's largest economies.

- The rising subcontracting cost and cross-currency headwinds may impact operating margins negatively.
